HISTORY
IU Outdoor Adventures began in 1972 as a committee of the Indiana Memorial Union Board. The early years involved occasional trips to local destinations and a small fleet of rental equipment. Today, IUOA has greatly expanded to include over 100 trips, trainings, and academic courses each year, 60 student Trip Leaders and professional instructors, a comprehensive rental operation, and IU’s only indoor climbing facility. IUOA moved to Eigenmann Hall in 2010, yet maintains its vital academic relationship with the School of Public Health-Bloomington and continues to hold firm to its historical foundation as a student leadership program of the IMU.

LOCATION
IU Outdoor Adventures is located on the ground floor of Eigenmann Hall, located at the intersection of 10th and Union. For best access, use the entrance on the east side of the building. 40-minute parking is available for all customers. Store hours change seasonally; please check the website for more information.

INDIANA MEMORIAL UNION
INDIANA UNIVERSITY
Bloomington
IU Outdoor Adventures coordinates dozens of Adventure Trips each year, including mountain biking, backpacking, climbing, hiking, canoeing, and rafting trips. Trips range in length from a single day to a few weeks. Recent trips have sea kayaked in Florida’s Everglades, rafted in North Carolina, backpacked in Utah, and whitewater canoed on the Rio Grande. IUOA typically offers multiple extended Adventure Trips during spring break, winter break, and the summer months. Each trip is planned, marketed, and led by a team of IUOA’s student leaders.

IU Outdoor Adventures partners with the School of Public Health to offer a variety of one and two credit hour courses designed to teach outdoor recreation skills. Courses vary by semester, but typically include whitewater rafting, backpacking, ice climbing, wilderness survival, rock climbing, kayaking, and more! Enroll today through the Office of the Registrar.

Every summer, IU Outdoor Adventures collaborates with the Office of First Year Experiences Programs to create unique outdoor experiences for incoming freshmen. On IU Beginning’s Adventure Orientation Programs, participants get a head start on their IU career by making new friends and learning about IU as they participate in big adventures. Trips include whitewater rafting, kayaking, climbing, zorbing, waterfall tours, hiking, canoeing, and backpacking.

IU Outdoor Adventures operates the university’s only indoor climbing facility. Bouldering is a style of rock climbing that involves short, challenging routes on vertical and overhanging surfaces above a thickly padded floor. The bouldering wall is nearly 1,000 square feet on three walls up to 11’ high.

Rates
- Day Pass: $6
- Annual Membership: $60

Call or visit our website for bouldering wall hours.

IUOA is continually hiring and training new leaders who have a passion for the outdoors. Past leadership and outdoor experience is suggested, but not required. For more information about becoming an IUOA Trip Leader and the SPH-W305 Introduction to Wilderness Leadership class, contact Tyler Kivland. IUOA also offers other positions, including Adventure Specialist, Outreach Coordinator, and seasonal interns.

Custom Experiences allows groups to design their own outing with the help of knowledgeable outdoor leaders. Groups will share memorable experiences, enhance interpersonal relationships, learn leadership skills, and work towards accomplishing goals. IUOA’s Custom Experiences coordinator helps select appropriate activities for the group based on its intended outcomes, whether the experience is a few hours or a few weeks long. We have worked with a wide variety of groups including residence halls, community non-profits, and student organizations to build exciting experiences. For more info, contact oacustom@indiana.edu.
